Red indicates that these sessions are only for students who have been told they must attend; they are on a register. Purple indicates that some students are on a register and must attend but others are also able to attend either on a first come first served basis or a sign-up sheet in the department. Green indicates that anyone is able to attend the session either on a first come first served basis or a sign-up sheet in the department.

Priority: Students must go to English and Maths and then science first before they can attend any other session on at the same time. After that priority then goes to whichever subjects students have the lowest predicted grade.

If students have to attend a detention, they must see the teacher first to arrange an alternative time or alternative sanction. If they have a whole school detention this this can be sat in the intervention session.
